Homebuyer education explains how the buying process works and will help you to choose the mortgage option that is best for you. You'll also learn about credit and debt management, budgeting, and more.

ACAP offers a live local Maine hoMEworks class for individuals interested in purchasing a home. Applicants who complete the class will be provided with a certificate to verify that they have satisfied the education requirement for mortgage programs.

The course provides step-by-step instruction on all aspects of the home buying process from application to closing, including:

- Determining how much home you can afford
- budgeting for homeownership expenses
- how credit affects home buying
- resources for down payment assistance
- mortgage financing options
- real estate contracts
- home inspections

If you are unable to attend a local live class, hoMEworks also has partnered with eHome America to offer a fee-based online certification course.

Some loan programs require a “HUD-approved” or in-person classroom training. Be sure to contact the organization offering the loan program you’re interested in to determine the specific homeownership education qualification requirements.
